

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

EXCHANGES

---

An extra number of the Mississippi Valley Historical Review, November, 1921, containing the proceedings of the thirteenth annual meeting of Mississippi Valley Historical Association, presents a number of important papers. Of special interest in Georgia is a paper on Elijah Clark's Foreign Intrigues and the "Trans-Oconee Republic," by E. Merton Coulter of the University of Georgia. Professor Coulter has made a careful study of two ventures of Elijah Clarke, who won fame and influence as a bold partisan leader in Georgia during the revolution. His intrigue with Genet against the Spanish in the Floridas links him with George Rogers Clark, Wilkinson, Burr and other Americans who have been tools of foreign powers. His Trans-Oconee settlement in defiance of the State of Georgia as well as the government of the United States forms an early chapter in the story of the interesting and often stormy relations of Georgia and the United States over the Indians within the State. The December number of the Review contains an article by Charles W. Ramsdell on the Control of Manufacturing by the Confederate Government and one by James G. Randall on George Rogers Clark's Service of Supply.

In the Maryland Historical Magazine of December, 1921, Bernard C. Steiner begins a life of James A. Pearce, United States Senator from Maryland for twenty years during the important period from 1843 to 1863. Edward S. Delaplane contributes the ninth installment of the life of Thomas Johnson, in which he describes the course of Maryland in regard to the Declaration of Independence in 1776. Some unpublished Provincial Records are printed and notes from the early Records of Maryland and material on the Calvert Family.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, January, 1922, publishes a paper by E. Alfred Jones, M.A., F. R. Hist. S., on the American Regiment in the Carthegena Expedition. This expedition, in 1740, is of interest in American history as the first occasion in which American troops were employed outside their own continent. Fairfax Harrison contributes an interesting article on Parson Waugh's Tumult, a reaction in Virginia to the "Glorious Revolution" of 1688-89.

The principal article of the January, 1922, Register of the Kentucky Historical Society is a History of the Coal Industry in Kentucky by Willard Rouse Jillson, Sc.D., Director and State Geologist of the Kentucky Geological Survey. There are published in this number of the Register also Early Marriage Records of Mercer County, 1786-1800, a glimpse of Paris (Kentucky) in 1809 by Mrs. W. H. Whitley; Clark County, Kentucky, in the census of 1810 copied and edited by A. C. Quisenberry; and tributes to the late William Thompson Price, who was buried at Frankfort, October 29, 1921.

Fifty pages of the Tennessee Historical Magazine of January, 1921, (issued December, 1921) are filled with an account of the Battle of Franklin, the Key to the Last Campaign in the West, by Reverend W. W. Grist, D.D., who was in the battle on the Union side. The magazine includes also a Yankee Schoolmaster's Reminiscences of Tennessee by Marshall S. Snow, who writes of Nashville from 1866 to 1869, and the history of Tennessee Department of Library Archives and History by A. P. Foster.

The South Atlantic Quarterly for January, 1922, contains an article on "The Place of Woodrow Wilson in American Politics" by Edward J. Woodhouse. This article gives the most important facts in the career of Woodrow Wilson from his election to the presidency to the present, and while it is an appreciation of his services it is not a glorification. It is an impartial, just and deserved tribute to an illustrious American statesman. There are two other articles in this number which are of special interest. Pro-slavery Propaganda in American Fiction of the Fifties, by Jeanette Reid Tandy, and Political Problems of Hispanic America; Their Origin and Nature, by Mary Wilhelmina Williams.